

To Do List

"To do list" task given as coursework for the module 'Mobile Development'. I mainly focused on designing the front end of the application as I was still experimenting and learning about android studio. For the back-end I decided to store notes on to the device's file system. Structuring where the notes should be saved was challenging as notes from different lists would need to be saved in an organized manner so they can be accessed effectively. I overcame this by creating folders for any new created lists. Depending on which lists the notes were created from, the notes would be saved in that specific folder. I Achieved 100% in this coursework.